

CHIEF INVESTMENT OFFICER The Ohio State University

The Ohio State University (OSU), is searching for a Chief Investment Officer (CIO), a newly created position, to build and lead an investment organization responsible for management of the University's $2.3 billion endowment fund. The endowment is expected to realize significant growth in contributions from the $2.5 billion capital campaign announced by President Gee.

OSU is a world-class public research university and the leading comprehensive teaching and research institution, ranked 19th among public universities in U.S. News & World Report. OSU is a multi-campus university with more than 60,000 students, 18 colleges, and 170 majors.

The Board of Trustees governs the University; the Investment Committee is responsible for investment oversight. President Gordon Gee, among the most highly experienced and respected university presidents in the nation, returned to OSU as its 14th President in October 2007. He was previously with OSU from 1990 to 1997.

This is an exciting opportunity to be the University's first CIO and the architect of this new investment organization. As CIO, you will be expected to (i) participate and advise the President, Investment Committee and senior University officials on the appropriate reporting and organizational structure for the investment department, (ii) design and build the infrastructure to support external management, (iii) evaluate the current pool of external managers and recommend changes, if necessary, and (iv) evaluate, recommend and modify the manager search process.

The ideal candidate will be a CIO or senior investment leader from a well-recognized investment organization (preference to applicants from endowments and foundations) with a track record of superior performance and established relationships with best-in-class external managers. An undergraduate degree is required (Master's preferred) and a CFA is preferred. Generalist investment knowledge and experience across all asset classes is desired, preference to strong experience in alternative investments is preferred.
